Hello, Storyland Families,

I do hope all of you are doing well and practicing safe distancing measures. Here at Storyland, we, too, are trying to remain safe in anticipation of reopening the school.

Unfortunately, we have not been given the go-ahead to reopen by the state's licensing office of HHS. We are still on strict orders to care for only children whose parents are considered to be essential employees. We realize that some businesses are beginning to open again, whose employees are not regarded as essential. We do anticipate that we will get the word from HHS soon, so we can announce the reopening of our school.

I know the teachers are anxious to get back to work, and I'm sure your children would love to see their friends again, but until we get that "go-ahead," we cannot open.

We will be posting a new note on the door and on FB each week to keep you informed. Again, please accept our apologies, but unfortunately, this is out of our control.

In the meantime, I hope your children are staying busy at home and that you parents are coping in the best way possible.

Sincerely,

Karissa & Janice
